SAINT LOUIS, MISSOURI

The Great Melting Pot

*"Germans and Frenchmen, Irishmen and Englishmen, Jews and Russians, into the cru-cible with you all.
God is making the American."*

by

Israel Zangwill

Foreword

"Give me the homeless, the tempest-tost."

Southwest Pilgrims, on their way to the corner-stone laying of the United Nations Building, visit the "Lady with the Lamp."

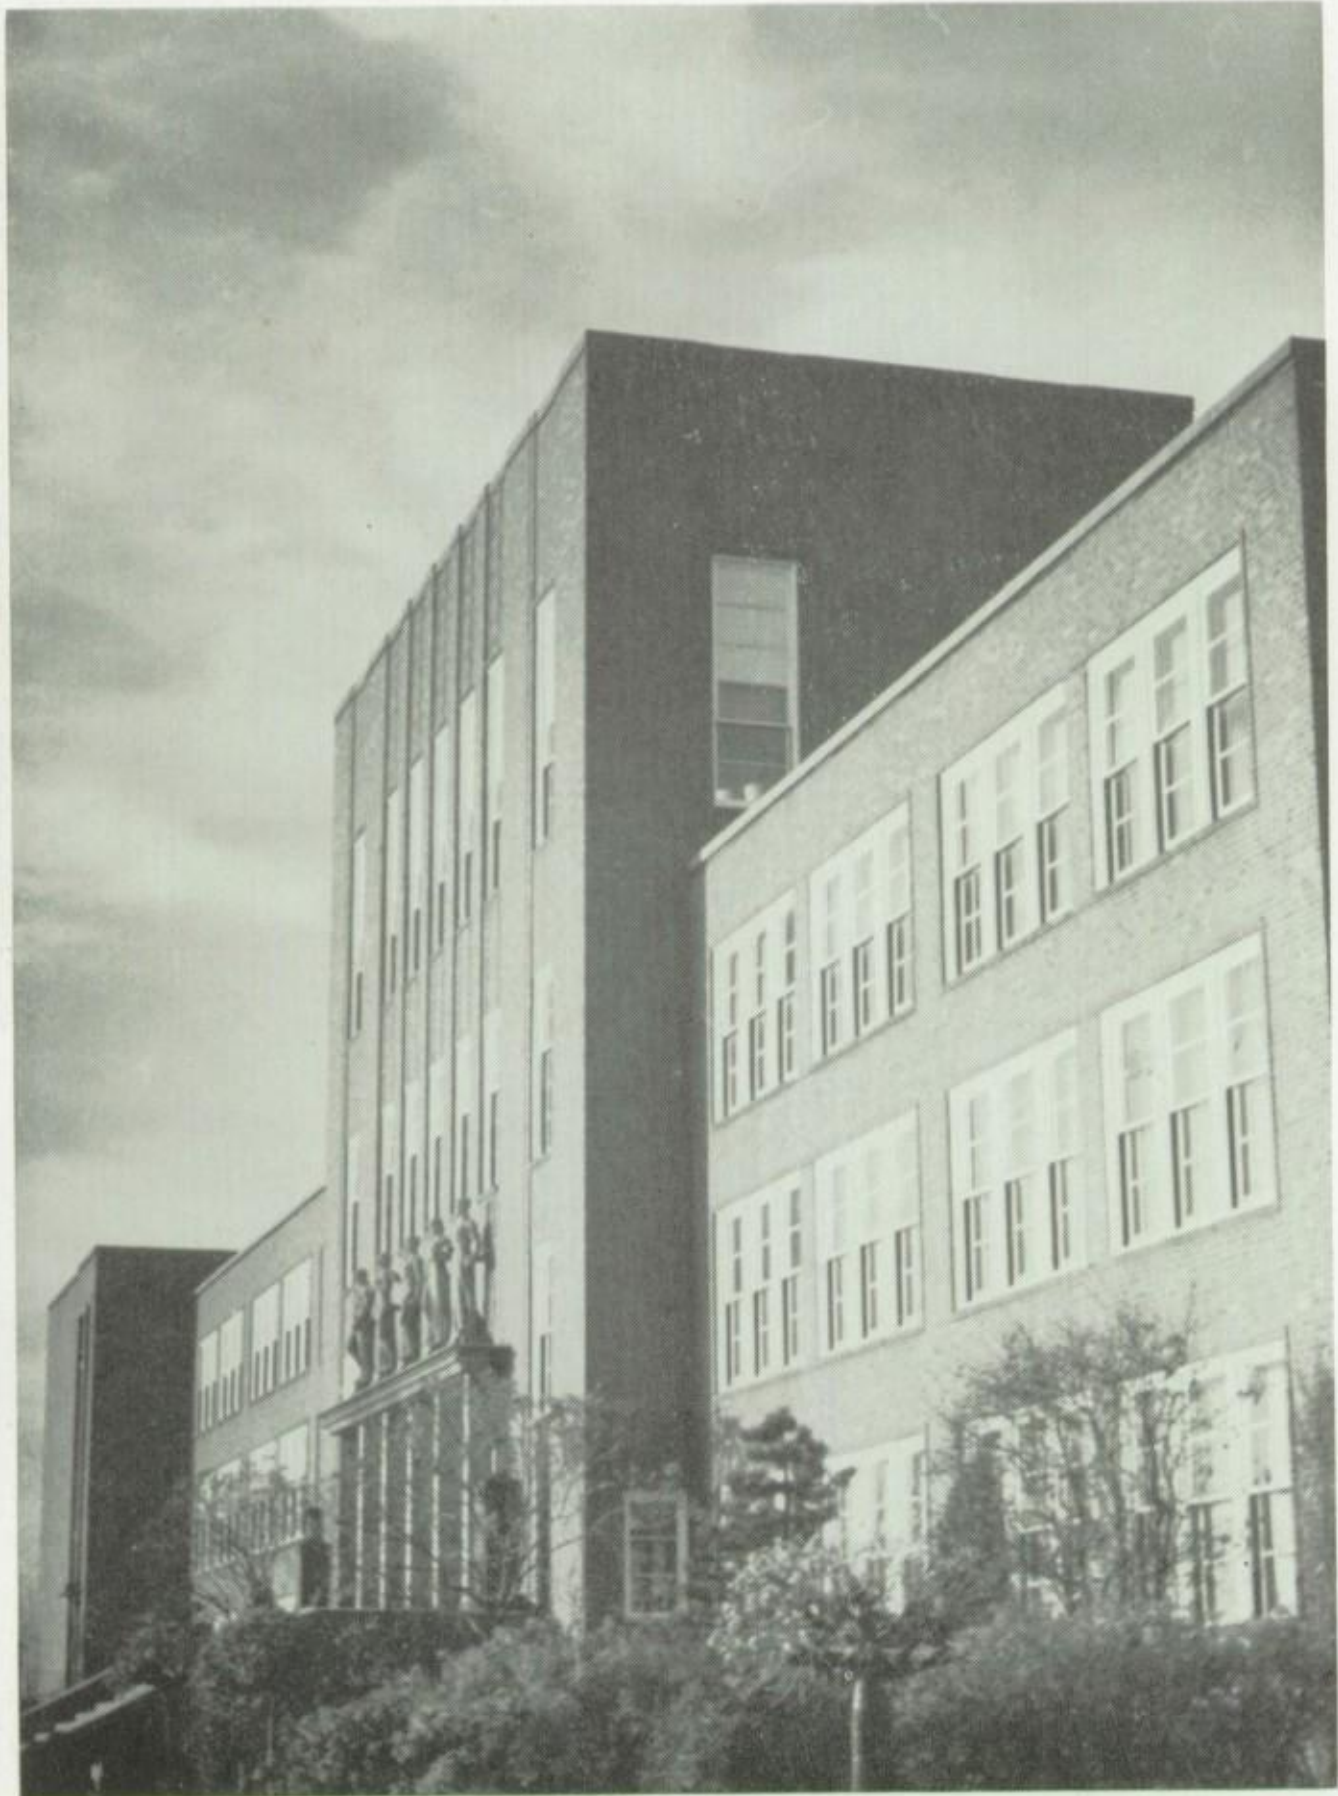

A land of snow-capped mountains and fertile valleys, of wide rivers and laughing brooks, of broad, rolling plains and towering forests—this is America, the land of promise. To this land came "the homeless, the tempest-tost" of the Old World in search of a better life for themselves and their families. Some came for adventure, some to spread the gospel of Christianity, some for economic betterment, and all for freedom and contentment. These wanderers brought with them many gifts to the New World, gifts that have made the great melting pot the foremost nation of the world.

Southwest High School offers an example of the many nationalities which make an American. Not one would want to return to the land of his ancestors. Each would say along with Archibald MacLeish:

"This is our land, this is our ancient ground—
The rare earth, the mixed blood and the strangers,
The different eyes, the wind, and the hearts change.
These we will not leave though the old call us.
This is our country earth, our blood, our kind."

And I to my pledged word am true,
I shall not fail that rendezvous."*

Richard Louis Overbeck

Born June 17, 1927

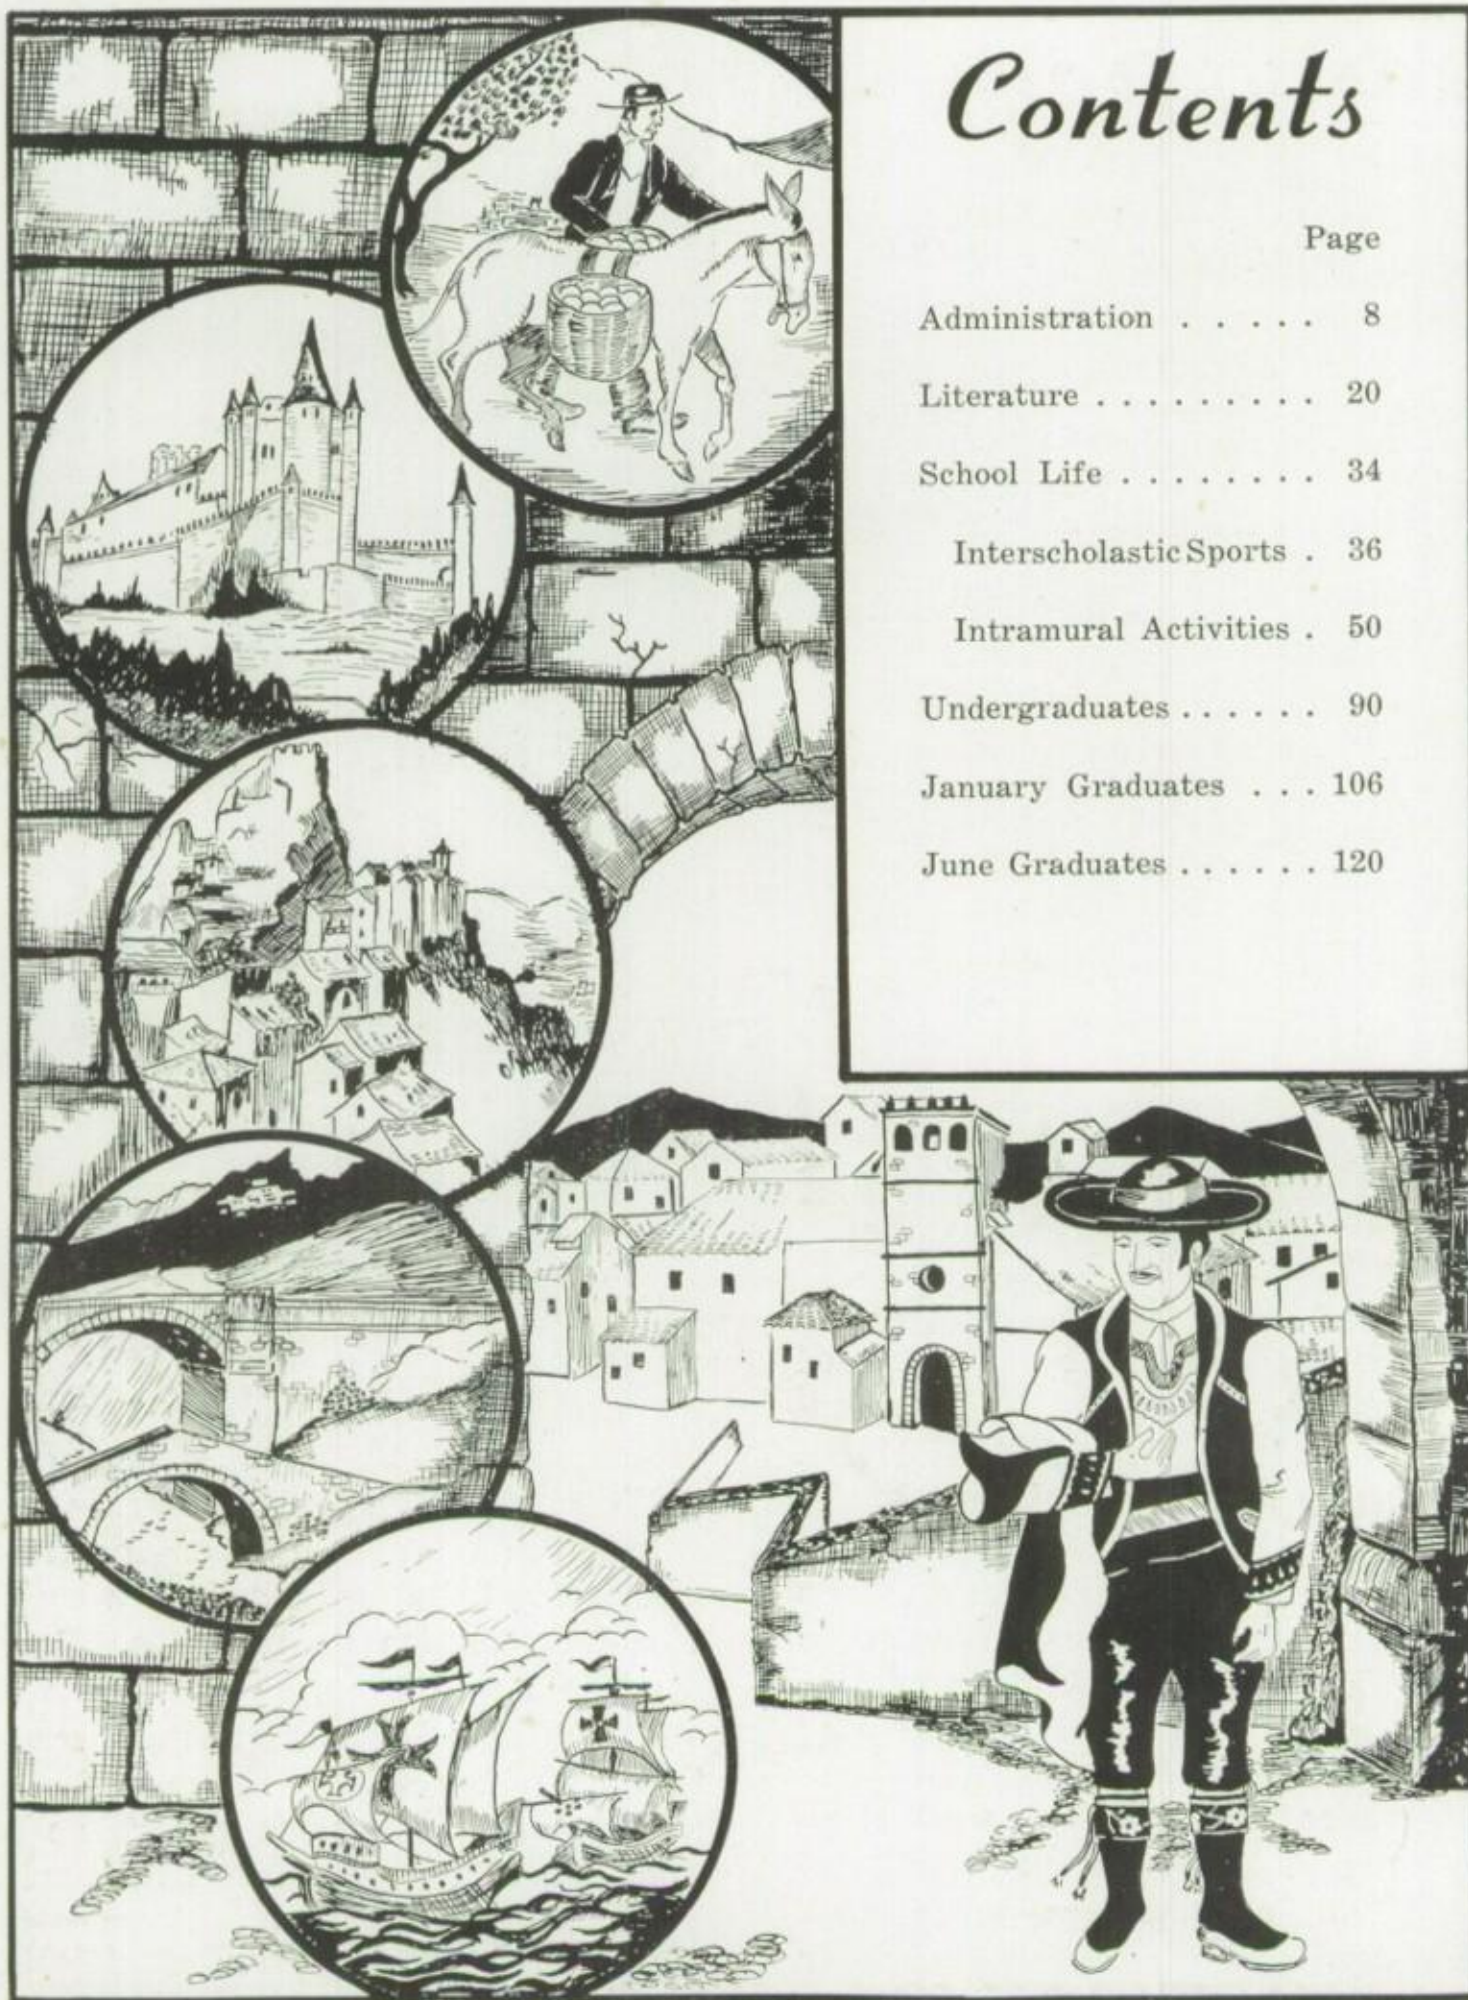

Died October 3, 1949

In the 1950 edition of the Roundup we want to honor Richard Overbeck, editor of the 1944 Roundup, who kept that "Rendezvous with Death" on October 3, 1949, a foggy night as he was driving down a lonely road. Blinded by the light of an oncoming truck, he crashed to his death. At that moment one of the brightest stars ever known to Southwest High School was lost to the world.

Richard graduated from Southwest High School in June of 1944. In his four brief years here he compiled a very high scholastic record and received a four year scholarship to Washington University. Both teachers and students of Southwest loved him and associates described him as "one of the nicest fellows we've ever known." Always popular with his school mates, he was elected Vice-President of the Student Council in his senior year. His sojourn here proved to be only a stepping stone to greater things in the field of higher learning.

When he entered the Washington University school of chemical engineering in the fall of 1944, he embarked on a career that would do justice to a genius. During his stay at Washington, six honor fraternities and two social fraternities elected him to their membership. At the end of his sophomore, junior, and senior years he received final honors for "excellence in scholarship."

After completing the requirements for his bachelor's degree in chemical engineering in three years, he started work on his master's degree which he received in September, 1948. During this time he was a candidate for the famed Rhodes scholarship for Oxford University in England. This is a brief biography of a boy destined for great things. To his memory we dedicate the 1950 Roundup.

An organization at Southwest High School of which we are all justly proud is the Student Council, under the fine sponsorship of Miss Hachtman. This well-organized body, a true example of American democracy, studies the problems of the students and presents their viewpoint to the administrative officers. During the past year, it has contributed to the fullness of our school life by sponsoring the outstanding Miss Southwest Dance, two Hello Days, the Fresh-

Doris Fleisch addresses the meeting.

This Council is an integral part of our school. An important factor in its success is that it is of the students, by the students, and for the students.

PERCHANCE TO DREAM

*Behind the heavy doors of sleep
I dream
Of silver sands of Samarkand

Of coral forests far below
The surface of the sea
Surrounding Neptune's castle like a web.
Then reach through rifts of cloudy veils
To grasp Aurora's outstretched hand—
I wake.*

ON THE AIR

By ELAINE ROSENOW

The second hand on the clock in studio A showed ten seconds to go . . . then five . . . the red light flashed, signaling that we were on the air; and the program began. "For the St. Louis Public Schools, we present . . ." I glanced nervously at my "Journeys into Storyland" script, then toward our director, ready to cue in the narrator, and went back to my script again. It was my first radio broadcast, and I was frightened — very frightened.

My fellow participants appeared quite calm, but it wasn't the first time for them. One participant leaned lightly against the piano. Another gently turned a page as he followed the script. The sound effects crew just quietly waited to go into action as if they did this every day. The narrator stood erect before the microphone as her voice flowed through the lines so firmly and smoothly. "Golly, she's good," I said to myself.

During the past few weeks of practice I had thought a dozen times how lucky it was that my part didn't start until the fifth page, so I could get the feel of being on the air first. I was wrong. It was worse, for I had too much time to think, to wonder if I'd make a fluff, to feel butterflies in my stomach, to realize how stuffy it was in the room, and how hard it was to breathe. I wanted desperately to cough and clear the lump in my throat or to talk with the person next to me. Then I remembered what our director had told the cast just before broadcast time. "This is a last reminder. Don't cough or even clear your throat; don't say one word to anybody; don't rattle your script; relax, and above all put everything you can into your part."

It was near the bottom of page four that I approached the mike to "do-or-die". I opened my mouth and the words came out. I didn't choke, or stumble, or rattle my script. In fact, I was pleasantly surprised to hear myself in conversation with the girl across the mike. Things moved quickly after that, and the broadcast was soon over.

It's impossible to imagine how relieved I felt. I had so exhausted myself that I was covered with perspiration from head to toe. The tenseness gone, I was as limp as a damp cloth and could hardly put on my coat and scarf. I rushed outside to breathe deeply of the fresh autumn air as I had dreamed of doing for the last fifteen minutes. The others strolled out chattering like magpies, passing around compliments on jobs well done.

All this took place about two years ago. Since then I have taken part in several radio programs. After a while I learned to control myself, so now, at least outwardly, I, too, appear quite calm; but when the red light says "on the air" that old empty-stomach pain grabs hold and won't let go until I've spoken my first few words into the mike.

BALLERINA

By JACQUELYN JOYCE

Patty immediately left the studio after the last number. She had lost no time in getting as far away from the studio as she could. She hadn't even taken off her make-up—that thick goo that is worn on the stage. Still in her costume—still with her toe shoes on, she wandered through the park.

Patty had started dancing lessons five years before. She had worked hard. Dancing was the one thing in life she loved above everything else. When other sixteen-year-olds were in the movie houses, Patty stayed home and practiced. She didn't even become excited when her mother took her shopping for new clothes. But her toe shoes were never forgotten. She kept them in careful repair. It was a great day in her life when she bought a new pair.

Once a month the dancing studio gave ballets. There were choruses and duets, quartettes and trios, but there was only one ballerina. For two breath-taking numbers, the ballerina had the whole stage to herself. She was the envy of everyone. For five years Patty had dreamed of this position for herself.

Until tonight, Becky Miller had had the position, but she was to be married in April. She had told them tonight that she was quitting. She had laughed and said that she had had enough dancing to last her the rest of her life. Patty couldn't understand how this was possible. She felt that she could dance forever and never tire of it at all. That is—she had felt that way until tonight.

When Becky quit, Patty had felt certain that she would be the next ballerina. She had worked hard and long. She had worked hard because she had had a goal. Then tonight the teacher had announced that Leslie Feeler would take Becky's place. Patty had been placed in a duet, teamed with Gloria Richmon—the one girl Patty could not tolerate.

After the last number of the ballet Patty had left. She had left quickly and quietly—for always. She had been so greatly disappointed. It was all because she had expected too much.

Tomorrow she would go to the studio and tell the teacher that she was quitting. She would tell her that it had been unfair to give her the duet with a girl that didn't even show up on time for lessons. She had practiced and practiced and practiced, and if this was the reward, she was quitting. Maybe it had been too much to expect the part of ballerina, but certainly she didn't deserve to be put with a lazy girl like Gloria.

Suddenly there was music coming from the other side of the park. Someone must be having a party, Patty reasoned. It was the kind of music that made her want to dance. Patty looked around carefully to see that no one was around. Then she majestically rose to her toes. Around and around the park square she danced to the swaying waltz. She was a dainty silhouette in the moonlight. On she danced, feeling that she couldn't stop until the music did. She felt so light—so airy. Then, as abruptly as it had started, the music stopped. Instead of silence following, Patty heard the applause of a single person.

"Well done, Patty," said a familiar voice. Patty turned to the voice and saw her dancing teacher standing there. Walking over to where Patty stood, she said, "I can see that you have practiced very hard."

Patty smiled weakly. If she had practiced so hard, why hadn't she been given the part of ballerina?

"You left the studio so fast tonight, I was afraid you were quitting," the teacher said. It was really more of a question than a statement.

"No," said Patty softly, "I'm not quitting." She couldn't quit. She knew that now. No matter what happened, she must go on dancing.

"That's fine, because I just had a very good idea," the teacher smiled. "Since it concerns you, I was hoping you would still be with us."

Patty's eyes widened. What could the teacher be talking about? The part of ballerina had already been given out. What plans could the teacher have now?

"You see," the teacher went on, "I realized tonight that I've been making a mistake. It isn't fair to Leslie to take over suddenly as she will have to do. She has to be ready for the ballet next month. Never having done anything like it, she will probably have a bad case of stage fright.

"Just now I decided to add another part to the ballet, a junior ballerina, to be exact, who will have a short solo. That way our next ballerina will have had practice being on the stage by herself. I think it will improve our ballets a great deal. Will you do it?"

Patty was speechless for a moment. Imagine! Next month she would have a spotlight all to herself. A short solo, the teacher had said, but then when Leslie quit, the position of ballerina would be hers.

"Oh, yes. I'll do it," Patty answered in a hushed voice. She felt the whole world was hers if she took the trouble to want it.

A SENIOR'S THOUGHTS

By JOSEPHINE STRANO

Now don't misunderstand me! I'm a senior and proud of it. It isn't as though I regret being a senior, but like everything else, it has disadvantages as well as advantages.

I have always looked forward to the time when I would reach my last year at Southwest, but now that I have, every time I think of the decreasing number of days till graduation I get a lump in my throat and lose my appetite for the rest of the day. I just can't imagine myself getting up in the morning and going anywhere but Southwest High School (except of course on Saturdays, Sundays, or holidays). I have become acquainted with the teachers and have accustomed myself to seeing new Southwesterners arrive and old ones leave. But now I am going to be the one leaving. I don't want to leave. I want to stay on at Southwest. I've enjoyed acquiring knowledge from our teachers.

I know I should want to carry through our school motto: "Enter to learn; go forth to serve." I've learned, to the best of my ability, and I do want to serve, to take my place among the citizens of our great country, but I don't want to leave Southwest.

My Alma Mater means more to me than just a place where I've spent a large part of four years of my life. It is where I was taught to live life happily with its joys and sorrows, successes and failures, harmonies and hazards.

No, I'm not afraid to face the future. I'm looking forward to it with pleasure, but in my heart there is something that tells me I'll never forget Southwest where many beautiful friendships have been made. I have memories to fill the deepest recesses of my mind.

Sometimes when I see a worn spot in the stone steps outside or sit in a class room, I think of the students that have come before me and the students that will follow me, placing their feet in the same place I have mine, sitting in the same seats. No, I'll never forget Southwest, but Southwest will forget me. I'll be just another record in the files.

Perhaps there are others who feel as I do, sorrowful and reluctant to leave, yet eager to start a new and eventful life where every day is a full one.

New friends, new ideas, new habits, but what of the old? Are they to be discarded, thrown out as old shoes that just don't fit anymore? What shall I do with the new found knowledge I've gained in the last four years? How shall I use it in order to gain full benefit from it?

Questions, questions, and more questions; these are the perplexities that pulse through my mind as I watch the days flying by and time drawing nearer to that important day.

Some of us will go to college, others to work, and others will be married. But I, what am I going to do? Well, whatever I decide, I'm going to put the good I've been taught into practice, and gain benefits from the knowledge I've acquired. I shall truly try to "go forth to serve."

Setting sail on the never-ending job of yearbook production early in September is the Roundup editorial staff, under the pilotage of Miss McIntire; the art staff, steered by Mrs. Markman; and the business staff, with Mr. Detering, as paymaster. At the second semester these goodly sailors, whose objective is to produce a finer yearbook and to give the students a more complete record of their school year, added a publications class, the first of its kind at Southwest, to its crew.

Another year has passed and with the direction of Miss Murphy, the journalism classes, and editors Gene Becker and Paul Rahmeier, the Pioneer has continued to produce the outstanding newspaper work that has become traditional at Southwest. In order to keep up the record, our school offers two semesters of journalism as well as work periods for the staff. The first studies the "tricks of the trade," so to speak; while those of the second and the staff do the actual writing and organizing of the paper.

Miss Krenning and a small group of dependable students make up the business staff. With their efficient help and that of Miss Meenach's Radio Workshop publicity campaign, plus the salesmanship of the Student Council Representatives who sell the paper in their respective advisories, the Pioneer, as always, made its goal in 1949-1950.

SOUTHWEST COACHES

Behind the success of every good team, there stands a man whose ingenuity, whose driving personality is responsible for that success more than any one element. Through his supervision and guidance a group of individuals are molded ever so carefully into a precise, co-ordinated mechanism. Then, and only then, can these boys function properly as a team. Here at Southwest we have quite a few such men.

Mr. Kenny, that dynamic man of the sidelines, coached our baseball team to first place honors, and our football team to a sizzling third, besides teaching courses in problems of living and physical education.

Mr. Polster, led our hard-wood men to a third place in league standings, and a second place in the Normandy tournament. He also teaches four classes of algebra, a class in general math., and, for a time, sponsored the cheerleaders.

Mr. Ashley, while the varsity was winning honors, rallied the junior cagers and ended the season with a .750 average. He's one of the P. E. experts of Southwest . . . he teaches eleven classes.

Mr. McArtor, a comparatively new member of the faculty, shared in the success of our varsity football squad as line coach. He, also, is a mathematician, teaching two classes in algebra and three classes of general math.

Mr. Gerber, better known as "muscles," coached our cinder-men to a third and our tennis team to a fifth place. Problems of living, general math., and P. E. take up his remaining time at school.

Mr. Merchant, a new member to the faculty, headed the battling B football squad through another fine season. General science occupies his time during school . . . he teaches four classes.

Mr. Brew, a commercial law teacher, sponsored the golf team. Although not entered in regular competition, they came in second in the state tournament.

Mr. "Pops" Chervenka, donated most of his time and effort to keep the athletic program out of the red by managing the sale of tickets, and scheduling the games. He, also, is the one and only chemistry teacher.

Plagued with many injuries, the Southwest eleven, under the coaching of Mr. Kenny and Mr. McArtor, got off to a faltering start in the 1949 football race. After it's first victory against Roosevelt, however, the team rallied and, with a record of three victories and three defeats went on to take third place in the Public High League.

The upset of the season came when the team, spurred on by student support, defeated a much favored Beaumont team for the second time in Southwest history.

Because this year's team was a comparatively young team, it should develop into one of the top contenders for next season.

The B team, lacking a good quarter-back and heckled by injuries gained in scrimmage with the varsity, started off feebly against their first two opponents, St. Mary's and Soldan.

As the season progressed, however, Ward Paglusch filled the weak quarter-back position, and the team broke even in the next four games.

Mr. Merchant, B coach, felt the team would have had a better record had the boys had more experience. They finished the season with a record of three victories, one tie, and three defeats.

The coach did, however, comment that the team developed some future stars in Paglusch, Shawall, Moxley, Dickey, and Marino.

Our basketball team has finished the season with many plaudits. The Southwest cagers played 23 games during the season. Winning 14 and losing 9 made the team finish the season with an average of .609.

In the Public High School League we took third place, due to McKinley's nosing us out on a play-off tie, 36 to 23. At the finish the count stood five won, three lost. Second place was ours in the Red division of the Normandy tournament at Christmas. We won from Mercy, Pacific, and Soldan-Blewett, but bowed to Kirkwood. Maplewood's Regional tournament saw us place third because, although we won from St. Mary's, Lutheran trounced us.

Three boys, Bill Woehler, Bob Stufflebam, and Frank Therina composed the backbone of the team. This trio scored 574 of the team's season total of 1,118 points. This sort of action is possible only after many, many practice sessions. In fact, some of these boys seem to have been playing from the time they stopped crawling and started walking. It is due to performances like these that our school is to be reckoned with in the basketball leagues.

B Basketball

Coach: MR. ASHLEY

The B Basketball team has again finished a season with an enviable record. The team played sixteen games, and of this number they won twelve and lost four. This enabled them to finish the 1949-1950 season with an average of .750. The coach, Mr. Ashley, took the seventeen boys, comprising the team, into his very capable hands and moulded them into a well-knit playing unit that defeated the rugged teams of Normandy, Central, Jennings, Lutheran, and Beaumont. In spite of the fact that Southwest was always the visiting team, they did not let this affect their record during the season's play on the hardwood courts.

With the exception of seven games which were in the Normandy Christmas tournament, the Maplewood Regional, and the league tie play-off, the B team played every school the varsity team did. Many people came to the games not only to watch the varsity team perform, but to see the many plays the B team executed in their exciting games with their doughty opponents.

The team members are justly proud of their many triumphs this year, and hope that more students will turn out to cheer for them and encourage them on to greater victories at their games next year.

FROM THE GRANDSTAND

"Ssst . . . BOOM! V-I-C-T-O-R-Y . . . victory . . . !"

Southwest has done it again. Another victory, a step forward toward another trophy. The crowd, filled to the brim with enthusiasm, follows the cheerleaders through that favorite of all cheers, the victory cheer.

Have you ever thought what school life would be like without cheers or cheerleaders? Think of a crowd sitting glumly back in its seat watching a thrilling game, or even worse, yelling violently without rhyme or reason.

Yes, sir! The cheerleaders, Jackie Hahn, Dee Pizzella, Paul Rahmeier, Suzie Glover, and Peggie Cummins, played an important part in our sports this year and did a fine job. But, on the other hand, they really had something to yell about . . .

In baseball the Southwest sluggers snagged a brilliant first place. Our football team played one of its best seasons, finishing the year in third place, beaten only by a heavy Cleveland team and nosed out in the final games by a wiry Roosevelt team. Southwest varsity cagers played a good game all year and came in third.

Topping the list of lettermen from respective teams in '49-'50 is football with 20 regulars earning letters. Following closely is track with 19, and baseball with 14. Tennis and golf rank last with 8 and 2 respectively.

This number of lettermen, plus the fine records shown by the teams prove the players were in there from the start, but student support was lagging a little. After the usual big crowds at the league openers, few students showed up to cheer for their team. However, with a few student rousing events such as: the gala parade before the Beaumont football game, extra long pep sessions, some hastily invented battle cries led by the cheerleaders, Southwesterners livened up.

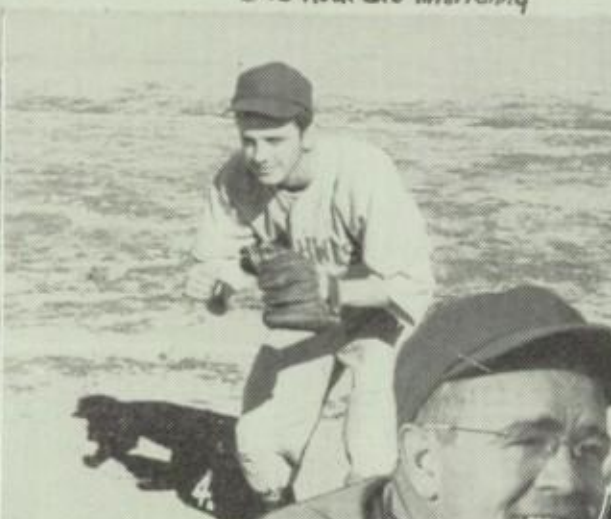

And so, as we close the book on another sport year at Southwest, we can look back with pride at the success of our teams in every field and again, led by the cheerleaders, call, "Ssst . . . BOOM! V-I-C-T-O-R-Y . . . victory."

Interested in having fun and earning a letter at the same time? If you are, then take a look at Southwest's fine golf club, under the sponsorship of Mr. Brew.

Meeting every Tuesday and Thursday, beginning in March and ending in May, the club, as usual, practiced for the big events in the local golf calendar—the city and state meets. Meets in which high honors came to the club are: the state tournament in October, 1948, in which the club took first place, and the 1949 state meet in which it took second.

Although not recognized as an interscholastic sport in 1949 because of the lack of the necessary, three to eight teams to form a league, the 1950 club met in league play with teams from St. Louis U. High, Kirkwood, U. City, and other schools. Letters were awarded to the boys with the lowest scores in the city meet.

The club, consisting of 16 members, lost two talented lettermen when Rene Bockenkamp graduated in January, 1950, and Ira Smith in June, 1950. These two vacancies plus the need for new blood offers to all Southwesterners interested, a good chance to participate in an interscholastic sport.

Although the Southwest tennis team, as a whole, did not come out with top honors in the St. Louis Public High Schools tennis tournament this year, the individual performance of our players, coached by Mr. Gerber, left very little to be desired. Of the seven team members who played in the tournament, six have graduated, so it will be hard to predict next year's success.

In the tournament both of the "doubles" teams set up an enviable record. Dale Jacobs and Don Mehringer never lost a set or match in the first "doubles," while Donald Link and Conrad Rensch in the second "doubles" lost only one set of all their sets and matches. Here they come passing in review! That team of teams, those men of men, the mighty SW sluggers and 1949 baseball champs.

Although never beaten twice by the same team, McKinley proved to be the thorn in their side, defeating the Southwest diamond men in their first encounter 7-4, and being barely nosed out in the last inning 8-7 in their last game. Roosevelt and Hadley are the only other teams able to claim a victory over Southwest.

These victories could not have been accomplished had not the team had its eye on the ball. Batting 400 or over, Jennings, Frahm, Flack, and Rehagen sent a barrage of hard-hit balls past the opposition to account for a sizable amount of those winning runs.

On the mound the team was equally good. Nick Ricciotti, Southwest gridiron star of notable fame, proved his versatility by winning 7 while losing only 1 game, as one of our best pitchers. It might be added that he fanned 52 opponents in the process. Little Ed Rehagen also proved his worth by winning 4 and losing 1 for the diamond stars.

These are but a few of the highlights, for the above boys could not have been so efficient without the co-operation and fine playing of all the boys on the team. For, after all, it is the teamwork, not the individual stars that win the games.

In spite of the fact that Southwest came in fourth in the Annual Public High School Track and Field Meet with 82 points to the winners' 232 points, they took two first and two third places. In the Annual Relay Carnival, Southwest came in fifth with 43 points to the winners' 127 points, even though our team set a new record in the two-mile relay. In this relay, Ward Paglusch, Jack Sheehan, Denny O'Neill, and Bill Price romped to the finish in nine minutes, six and eight-tenths seconds. This beat the previous record, made by Beaumont in 1948, by nine-tenths of a second.

Music at Southwest

M stands for Miss Meyer and music.

M stands for Mr. Monachesi and more music.

Excuse us if we seem to boast. To tell the truth, we cannot write about Southwest's music without tooting our own horn, or singing our own praises. Anyhow, all good and true Southwesterners agree that our music is tops.

Our fine band has a membership of eighty-four. To hear their stirring marches each morning, gives us a lift for the day. Nor should we neglect to mention that band within a band, Southwest's Swingsters, who add so much to the school dances by their rhythmic music. And, of course, we had only to hear our orchestra play the introduction to "The Prince of Pilsen" to nominate them for the title of "High School Orchestra of the Year".

As for the vocal organizations, in no school of comparable size will we find larger numbers, greater enthusiasm, or more beautiful voices than those of our warblers. These are divided into two advanced chorus groups, one boys' glee club, one girls' glee club, and one choir. Besides these larger groups, we want to call your attention to the Early Risers. If we could, we would vote them an Oscar for their outstanding community service.

And now, if you will turn the page, look at the pictures, and read about these organizations, we know you will understand our pride in the "Music at Southwest".

"Oh what a beautiful morning," sing the boys and girls of our choir as, trying to beat the 8:00 o'clock dead line, they race up the stairs. Alas and alack, once in a while a few of the early birds arrive a little late, say about 8:15. (Donnie Ryckman and Barbara Steele, please note!)

The qualifications for persons who are interested in joining this group of songsters are: to be interested in music, to have a true voice, and, last but not least, to belong to the "early-to-rise" variety of the species.

The officers of the choir are: Bob Shores, president; Bob Salzmman, vice-president; Barbara Steele, secretary; Toni Vento, boys' treasurer; and Bob Perkins, girls' treasurer.

Orchestra

Director: MR. MONACHESI

Say it with music! Our orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Monachesi, does just that. Their schedule will prove without a doubt how varied their performances were and how much service they gave the school this year.

Advanced Chorus

(ONE)

Director: MISS MEYER

A fast growing group at Southwest is the Advanced Chorus. This year, because 20% of the school enrolled, the chorus was divided into two groups. Each section met daily in Room 400.

The excellent training in part singing, which the students received, will, for many of them, mean membership in Glee Club or A Cappella. Students enjoyed finding "The Lost Chord" and singing other songs, such as "Country Style."

Did you hear the chorus in Prince of Pilsen? If not, you surely didn't miss the Christmas program, and of course you heard the Spring Festival.

"Even though we did work hard," the students laughed, "we had fun giving the programs."

And came the big reward! A picnic to top all picnics, held at O'Connell's Farm.

*To Jack,
All the very best of luck. Love
Marge*

Boys Glee Club

Director: MISS MEYER

The "Stout-Hearted Men" give out with a close harmony number.

Listen! A rousing marching song rings out from Room 400. Voices, ranging from the bell-like tenors of the first semester boys to the deep organ-noted basses of seniors, blend in "Stout-Hearted Men". Perhaps, instead, it is a close harmony number such as "Sweet Kentucky Babe". Whatever it may be, it is "Music, Music, Music" to our ears.

Not only did the boys join with the Girls Glee in the operetta, Christmas program, and Spring Festival, but we find that they were busily engaged in singing for various community get-togethers — at Alhambra Grotto, for the 24th Ward Republican Club, and for the P. T. A. Christmas Program—to name two.

To make a fitting finish at the end of the year they joined the girls for a rollicking hayride and wiener roast.

Talk! Talk! Talk! Isn't that what happens when 100 girls get together? Well, maybe it usually is, but that wasn't the case of the girls who met in Room 400 at the sixth period this year. They grouped there for the purpose of "making beautiful music" together.

It was a busy year for these girls. The Prince of Pilsen took up their time at the beginning of the year. Next came the ever fine Christmas auditorium session and community caroling. Then the Spring Festival crept up on the girls—but did not catch them napping. Oh, no, the club was ready with delightful spring songs.

Yes, we think you will agree, that with all these activities these girls have definitely proved that a group of women can get together and do something besides Talk! Talk! Talk!

The proof that girls can sing as well as talk.

January Thaw

Director:

MISS REILLY

On April 27th and 28th, the senior classes of Southwest High School presented the Broadway success, "January Thaw", a three-act comedy by William Roos.

The plot tells of the clashing of interests and personalities of the ultra-modern Gage family and the old-fashioned Rockwood family. The Gage family, seeking peace and quiet, buys an old farm house in Connecticut. There, Mother remodels old coffee grinders into lamps, while Father tries to write a "best-seller" novel in a blitz of interruptions instead of in that country quiet he sought. Since the Rockwoods, the original owners of the house, are supposed to be dead, no one worried about the clause in the deed, giving them the house if ever they returned to Connecticut.

All goes well with the Gages until one day Matilda and Jonathan Rockwood appear on the scene. From this point on things begin to hum.

Bob Saltsman, Marian Schulze, Bonnie Stone, and Dave Schulz played the leading roles. The magnificent performance of these young Thespians, together with the fine talent and esprit de corps shown by those in the minor roles, completely captivated the entire audience.

Dramatics and Radio Workshop

Crash—bang—Spike Jones' understudies!

We "applaud to the very echo" this year's Dramatics and Radio Workshop groups. Besides their behind-the-scenes work, where they acquire the "know how", they have given several outstanding public performances. For example, the PTA enjoyed "The Night Before Christmas", given by the Dramatics students. The freshmen applauded a repeat performance of the same play. In the Journeys into Storyland series, the Workshop artists pleased the KFUE radio audiences with "Belinda's New Shoes" and "The Little River of Gold." These busy people, too, put on both Pioneer campaigns. The first took its theme from the California gold rush of '49, while the second projected a twenty-fifth century rocket race to the moon.

On October 27 came the Workshop Open House. The occasion was the completion of their very fine studio. Many guests, including Mr. Hickey and Mr. Nants, were on hand to make the celebration memorable. This affair was but one of the high lights that made this year an outstanding one for Miss Meenach's Thespians.

"Give and ye shall receive," is the motto of Special Service. The boys and girls of this group give up their study halls for the purpose of helping the school run smoothly.

The 1949-1950 members have been unusually active. They have performed tasks such as doing library work under the guidance of Miss Busch, assisting with office work in the main and nurse's office, serving in the lost and found, and helping Mr. Jaeger in the book room. These are only a few of the worthwhile things these busy people contributed to the betterment of our school.

As to what they received, they have, first of all, had the satisfaction of having done a needed service to their school. As an added reward, when they graduate they will receive credit for the hours they have contributed.

Mr. Brew always needs dependable students to help in this work. Next year join Special Service and give as well as receive.

Among the groups which helped to spread good cheer this semester were the art classes who did art work for the Junior Red Cross. These busy people, encouraged by Miss Boedeker and Mrs. Markman, made 357 tray covers, 16 menus, 61 hats, and numerous other articles of paper for distribution among the convalescing veterans of the various hospitals.

Their faces in this picture reflect the satisfaction which they feel in having done something worth while.

We Remember

Southwest in '49-'50 will be remembered by all the students for different reasons. Some will remember the "new look" that came over the school as the rooms took on shades of light blue, green, and peach . . . Some will remember that extra special "Hello Day" which introduced the song and dance minstrel act by Jackie Hahn, Susie Glover, Peggy Cummins, and Dee Pizzella, and featured the encore winning trio "The Three Acorns" . . . All fives through eights will remember College Days when representatives from about sixty colleges gave the pupils information concerning the various colleges . . . A fortunate group of seventeen students will remember their inspiring trip to New York City and the United Nations . . . Our music minded will remember Southwest's tuneful twosome, Marilyn Hagar and Art Zimmer as the winners of a trip to New York and an appearance on the national telecast of the Amateur Hour . . . "Keep It Dark", "Vassar Girls", "A Sleep in the Deep", "Vas you effer in Zinzennati?"; these will always bring back the memory of The Prince of Pilsen, the operetta of the year. Unforgettable "characters" made their appearance then: Bob Shores as Hans Wagner, Charles Digiovanni as Francous, and Bill Price as Artie . . . The Holly Hop for the eights and Jack-O-Lantern Jump for the sevens plus the big Miss Southwest Dance will bring pleasant memories to those who attended . . . Many will remember Ted Duke as the Harvard Book winner, Carol Stewart as Washington University's scholarship choice, Bob Shores as our outstanding orator, Jack Bentzinger as prep player of the week and as Student Council President, and Dee Pizzella as Miss Southwest . . . All loyal sports fans will remember the Saturday of the Southwest-Beaumont football game, for the parade before it and the score at the end (eighteen to thirteen in favor of Southwest) immortalized it. The Normandy Basketball Tournament gave the fans something to remember for many a day as a fast-moving contest in which the Steers took second place . . . Perhaps another group will remember the Town Hall, the Bell Telephone, and the Christmas auds as periods well spent.

The second semester started off in an unforgettable manner as the coal strike rearranged the school hours a bit . . . Most of us will remember the Salute to the Roaring 20's that the Student Council, with President Paul Rahmeier, presented on Hello Day . . . Our nature lovers, and that's all of us, will remember the two fine auds that came at the beginning of the semester; first, Mr. Campbell's talk and film of the animals of the North woods, and "Happy Valley" by Mr. and Mrs. Hadley . . . Our band lovers will never forget the fine concert by the Coe College band, either . . . Those who attended January Thaw, a comedy presented by the seniors, will chuckle in retrospect over the difficulties of the Gages and Rockwoods . . . Another group of thirty-four lucky ones will never forget their trip to Washington, D. C., and Williamsburg, Virginia, a trip which took seven exciting days . . . Bunny Bounce for the sevens and Raindrop Hop for the eights were the two memorable fun-filled dances for the semester . . . The memory of the music festival featuring flashbacks to our operettas will linger throughout the years and, of course, no one of either class of 1950 will ever forget the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" on that night of nights—Graduation.

Besides their regular work of learning how to join woods, sharpen tools, and read blue prints and of making hammers, waste baskets, nut bowls, and furniture, Mr. Gillilan's Industrial Arts boys found time to do their share of Red Cross work. This year they made twenty-four ash trays for convalescing veterans. These trays, the sewing work of Miss Millikan's girls, the art work of Miss Boedeker and Mrs. Markman's classes, and the knitting and sewing of Miss Mesloh's Service Club made an impressive collection when the Service Club consigned them to the Junior Red Cross.

Stamp and Bond Salesmen

Sponsor: MRS. McDONALD

Do you ever think about the future? Of course you do! Then why not buy stamps or bonds? Every nickel, dime and quarter you save now will mean security for the future. As the old saying goes, "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." If you are planning to attend college, bonds are a sure way to have your tuition money in hand.

Last year at this time Southwest had invested $1,192.51 in these gilt-edge securities. This year's record is far ahead of that amount—$2,685.30. Remember, "SAVE TODAY FOR TOMORROW."

"Bang! Bang!" To this familiar sound the Southwest Rifle Club spend their Tuesday afternoons practicing at the Armory. Under the guidance of the able sponsor, Mr. Snyder, the club has elected these officers for this year: Richard Mueller, President; Jack Weber, Vice-President; Richard Franklin, Secretary; Charles Meuser, Treasurer; and Bob Hess, Executive Officer.

To compete in the matches this year a team of Ramon Gass, Bob Ingelbritzen, Bob Pearson, and Fred Buechner, with Jack Weber and Richard Mueller as co-captains, was chosen. These matches were fired against Cleveland Boys, Cleveland Girls, St. Louis U. High, Beaumont, C. B. C., Alton, Western Military, and Country Day. Do movies aid education? According to modern theory visual education is invaluable in the classroom. To further this idea of modern teaching, Southwest sponsors a Projection Club. When a picture can be of any help in emphasizing a part of the work in some class, the Club, led by the president, Don Gessley, is ready and willing to give up study periods in the service of the school.

Motion pictures are used in any class from biology to psychology. Once a week during the third period pictures are shown in connection with Freshman Orientation. Movies are used in the health classes at least once a week. The psychology classes use a picture whenever one of the greatly wanted films is available. In each of these classes a boy is needed to run the projector when movies are shown. For such great service to the whole school, we give many thanks to this hard working Club.

General Sponsor: MISS MESLOH

"'Tis more blessed to give than to receive." The girls of the Junior Red Cross surely practice this Biblical admonition. Although for their work they receive no coveted "E" nor a flashy letter for their sweaters, they gain a wonderful satisfaction in the knowledge that they have done something that is really worth while.

During the past two semesters the club sponsored the eighty-seven Christmas gift boxes that the advisory groups so willingly donated. With material from the Red Cross headquarters, the girls turned out five pairs of knitted mittens, two pairs of knitted mules, four knitted afghans, and fifteen toy animals. The finished products will eventually find their way to the veterans' and the childrens' hospitals of St. Louis.

P. S. Did you attend the club picnic this year? Did you win one of the prizes? Did you eat too many hot dogs? If you can't answer "yes" to these questions, you have missed a great deal of fun.

Snails! Snakes! Frogs! Does the very sound of these make you cringe? Do you feel shivers running up and down your spine? You might, but to some people these creatures seem very interesting. One Thursday of every month, our naturalists meet after school in Room 108. This year, with the help and guidance of Miss Nuebling, they made the interesting project which you saw on display in the main showcase in the second floor corridor. Reptiles, hamsters, and plants were their subjects.

This year the members of this club and some other science students took a trip to Potosi, Missouri. They took hikes and received numerous lectures on wild life and plants.

Although few in number, the members of this group have made this one of the most active clubs at Southwest.

"Oh, I know that bird!" Can you say that? Members of the Audubon Club can.

The purpose of this club is not only to identify birds, but also to enjoy and protect them. This year the members achieved this purpose in several ways: St. Louis Audubon Society's Junior Screen Tours were held at Southwest, assistant leaders for public bird walks were furnished by the club, bird walks were held, and a bird census was taken.

But all was not work. There were picnics in both the fall and the spring, and a Christmas party which all enjoyed. If you still do not believe that bird study can be fun, next year drop in at a meeting of the Audubon Club. One meeting will convince you.

By-the-way, did you attend the Audubon's Screen Tour "Happy Valley"? It was one of the outstanding auditorium treats of the year.

"Peace on earth, good will toward man," will some day come to the world through mutual understanding. Our neighbors south of the border have languages, customs, and viewpoints that differ from ours. It follows naturally that the Pan-Am Club would have "Que nos entendamos mejor" (that we may understand each other better) as its purpose. To accomplish this end the club sponsors reports, films, and talks by people who have first-hand knowledge. This year the club gave two freshman auditorium sessions: a Christmas program featuring the Yule-tide carols and customs of our Spanish friends, and the always enjoyable Pan-American Day program. Added to these, a radio broadcast, featuring members of the group, spread "good will" far and wide.

The Pan-American Club, having been in existence since 1937, is one of the oldest organizations at Southwest. Many others have come and gone, but this one goes on the even tenor of its way seeking always to promote peace through understanding.

The members of the Latin Club have just concluded another interesting and enjoyable year in the study of classical Latin. The co-sponsors of the club, Miss Steffen and Miss Woody, again succeeded in choosing activities which interested both the beginning and the advanced students of Latin.

The fall semester started with a discussion of the usefulness of Latin in the legal profession. Later meetings were devoted to the reading and writing of Latin, including the reading of the Nativity just before Christmas. The last meeting—the Christmas meeting—featured one of the traditions of the club, the singing of Christmas carols, such as the favorites, “Adeste Fidelis” and “Silens Nox.”

During the spring semester, which also stressed correct reading and writing of Latin, the club read “Anseres Arcem Servant,” the tale of how the geese saved Rome, which was easy enough to appeal to new Latin students. The annual picnic, a tremendous success, climaxed the agenda of the fourth year of the Latin Club.

Remember College Day? Did you enjoy speaking with the different representatives from colleges throughout the United States? Did you have enough time to confer with each of these representatives? If not, don't fret, you still have a chance to meet them by joining the College Club, where there is a speaker from one of the leading colleges or universities at each meeting. These speakers give detailed descriptions of college life at their particular college.

Besides these talks there are many other activities in this club; for example, this semester a Valentine Party and a trip to Washington University were part of the program.

If you are planning to attend college, next year attend the College Club.

Sponsor: MISS SKINNER

Does that wonder of the modern age, the airplane, intrigue you? If it does, the Aviation Club and the aeronautics class is just the thing for you. Here you will have a great opportunity to learn more about this interesting subject and satisfy your curiosity.

Meeting every Monday, the club discusses new developments in the rapidly progressing field of aviation. Often to add to the general interest, they feature outside speakers and enjoy moving pictures which deal with aviation. This year, not daunted by difficulties, our future aviators undertook the feat of building an exhibit which emphasizes the development of the airplane and includes several miniature replicas of famous old and recent planes.

It sounds interesting, doesn't it? If so, you should join the class in aeronautics and make a study of this fascinating subject. Although the aeronautics course is limited to upper grade students, anyone is eligible to join the Aviation Club. Why don't you?

Girls! Have you ever longed to look like Esther Williams? We don't guarantee that you can do the Jack Knife or the Swan Dive with the grace or skill she does, but after joining the Swimming Club, under the leadership of Miss Sullivan, you won't sink to the bottom of the pool like a rock.

During the second week of September of this year the club got off to a splashing start by nominating Marjorie Balazs, President; Jackie Blair, Vice-President; and Toni Vento, Secretary-Treasurer. Time passed, and we find some of the girls have passed the life guard test, the purpose of which is to keep other members from drinking too much of the pool's water. Marjorie Balazs attained the top spot as Senior Guard; Betty Johnson, and Valda Henn became Junior Guards.

For the interest of all future members the purpose of this organization is recreation for girls who know how to swim and instruction for those who don't.

On January 30, 1950, 163 lucky freshmen, 75 girls and 88 boys, entered this high school eager and ready to begin a four year pursuit of knowledge. Bidding them to "enter to learn" Southwest opened its hospitable doors to them. Helpful Student Council representatives directed them to the auditorium, where they were welcomed by Mr. Jackson, who introduced them to their advisers: Miss Hartnagel, Mrs. Martyr, Mr. Cameron, Mr. Detering, and Mr. Erskine. Having been divided into groups, they went with these advisers to their home rooms. Then came the big business of getting started in high school. What a busy morning they spent! Each one made out a registration card and two program cards under the eagle eye of his adviser. Next, he went to the gym, where he was given a locker card. From there, he went on a hunt to locate the locker and learn how to open it. Having mastered this by-no-means-simple task, he made a tour of the building to find the rooms in which his classes were to be held, stood hungrily at the door of the cafeteria, and finally returned to his home room, where he received more instructions from his adviser.

At noon, weary, a little bewildered, but triumphant, he left the building. He had begun his high school career! He was in the big league at last! So ended the first day for the members of the graduation class of January, 1954.

MR. DONALD ASHLEY

B. S. Southern Missouri State College
M. S. Louisiana State University

As coach of the football, "B" basketball and track teams, and as teacher of health and boys' physical education classes, Mr. Ashley has worked with many boys of the January, 1950 class for several years. Because of his pleasant personality, able leadership, and commanding presence, the class chose him as one of its sponsors. The classes of January, 1950 and June, 1947 have both claimed this friendly man as a sponsor. Mr. Ashley has coached several athletic teams to victory, but only time will tell whether this class of 1950 will be one of the championship "teams".

Best of luck to a nice guy D. me

MISS KATHERINE MURRAY

A. B. Washington University
M. A. Washington University

It takes a good sense of humor, iron nerves, and a great deal of patience to be a successful senior class sponsor. Miss Murray has all these requirements, plus the courage to tackle the job more than once, as her sponsorship of the January classes of '41, '45, '47, '48, and '49 proves. Her pep and vitality have come to the fore in her work with the Pep Club and Cheer Leaders. She also is the faculty representative of the Southwest Alumni Association. Her energy and capability enables her to do all these things in addition to her social studies classes.

MISS CORINE HACHTMAN
A. B., Harris Teachers College
M. A., Washington University

A wise man once said, "If you want something done, ask a busy person." At Southwest we have modified this by saying, "If you want something done well and efficiently, ask Miss Hachtman." Miss Hachtman has sponsored the Student Council for five years and has been a member of the schedule committee for seven. If Southwest needs a coach for an oratorical contest, graduation speech, or a Junior Town Hall meeting, Miss Hachtman is on the job. The class of June, 1950, is not the first, but the ninth class she has co-sponsored. Miss Corine Hachtman is truly our nomination for the "woman of the year."

Mr. B. J. Chervenka, better known as "B. J." or "Cherry", is listed in the official files as a teacher of chemistry at Southwest High School. At Southwest we know he is more than that. He was in charge of school programs until 1945. He has been our efficient athletic director since 1938. Due to his untiring efforts, two special trains of football fans have rolled Southward. If the operetta or Senior play needs scenery, Mr. B. J. sees that it is forthcoming. Added to these activities, he has co-sponsored the class of June, 1950. We are sure we could not have picked a better co-sponsor. "All this and fudge, too," we owe to our friend, B. J.
